New Product – XACT for Enterprise™

5 September 2013

RungePincockMinarco Limited (ASX: RUL) [RPM] has today launched XACT for Enterprise™, a fully integrated Operational Productivity Management (OPM) enterprise software solution.

XACT for Enterprise augments enterprise resource planning systems, such as SAP, with production plans, maintenance schedules and actual operational data. This ability to compare actual against planned resource movements at an enterprise level creates a truly powerful, integrated planning and execution environment.

At the launch of the new product, RPM Chief Executive Officer Richard Mathews said, “Productivity is now the paramount focus of the industry - as mines become deeper, grades lower and operations become more complex.”

“In response, we engineered XACT for Enterprise which is designed to give mines a new level of agility in their short-term mine planning. The industry now has the ability to respond.”

XACT for Enterprise creates a collaborative production environment facilitating constant and seamless synchronisation of production forecasts, schedules and actuals as well as maintenance outages.

Leveraging its partnership with SAP, RPM has developed XACT for Enterprise to conform to all relevant industry integration standards demanded by clients and to integrate with SAP seamlessly, ensuring data flow auditability and governance. For mines with SAP, XACT for Enterprise represents a logical productivity extension into operations.

XACT for Enterprise has been launched in line with the company's software strategy which focuses on development of enterprise solutions

Mr Mathews concluded by saying “We are absolutely delighted to have brought this enterprise product to market. With XERAS for Enterprise (which was launched in May) we now have a new suite of products which are both competitive and unique. We are confident that these products will receive a high level of market acceptance by our current and potential customers.”
